FAIRNESS TOWARD NEGROES

Taft's Attorney General Stands for the "Square Deal."

Attorney General Wickersham reflects the broad American spirit of himself and his chief, President Taft, in his splendid fight against the dropping from membership in the American Bar Association of his able colored assistant, William H. Lewis.

It is needless to say that every supporter of Woodrow Wilson and every sympathizer of Theodore Roosevelt is given to the refusal to recognize the citizenship of the southern negro, is opposed to Mr. Wickersham in his battle for equal rights and fair treatment for colored Americans.

The action of the executive committee of the Bar association in revoking the election of three colored members, gentlemen of spotless professional standing and excellent personal character, by their local committees, was outrageously, cruelly unjust and ought to be repudiated by every respectable lawyer in the United States. It was a concession to that southern Democratic prejudice which seeks to crush the spirit of manly aspiration in the negro's breast and to tolerate him only as a laborer on the plantations and for the households where his ancestors were slaves. It amounts to an attempt to nullify the constitution of the United States, as amended after the rebellion, by men whose sacred obligation and welcome duty it should be to support that instrument in their every act as lawyers and as citizens.

In their resolute backing of Assistant Attorney General Lewis against the assaults of rank Bourbonism and racial prejudice, President Taft and his attorney general have the good speed of every American who believes in the principles for which Lincoln died, and who is determined that the sacrifices which the nation offered up on the altar of freedom and equal rights for all shall not have been made in vain.

The Wilson Fall Frost.

The free trade Evening Post publishes a lot of figures to show what would happen if all the states voted the same as Vermont in November.

A two-and-three-makes-five school boy could tell the free trade Evening Post that if all the states should vote in November the same way Vermont has voted Taft would have the whole electoral college.

It came early, but it came with a bite to it the Wilson fall frost. Bryan and Parker were both elected in August and buried under a snowstorm of ballots in November, and Wilson is hurrying to the same snow.

Mother of Eighteen Children.

"I am the mother of eighteen children and have the promise of doing more work than any young woman in my town," writes Mrs. O. J. Martin, of Boone Mill, Va. "I suffered for five years with stomach trouble and could not eat as much as a biscuit without suffering. I have taken three bottles of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and am now a well woman and weigh 168 pounds. I can eat anything I want to as much as I want and feel better than I have at any time in ten years. I refer to anyone in Boone Mill or vicinity and they will tell me for what I say." Chamberlain's Tablets are for sale by all dealers.

That Referendum Record.

A "news letter" offered to Nebraska newspapers for free use by "the democratic news bureau at Lincoln" contains this statement of Candidate Morehead's record on the referendum amendment:

"John H. Morehead supported the initiative and referendum, but he insisted that the percentage be fixed high enough to prevent foolish propositions, yet low enough to make it comparatively easy for sensible propositions to be submitted. The amendments which Morehead supported, and which were finally enacted into law, provides a safe and sane initiative and referendum. It will permit of reforms needed, yet prevent intolerance and fanaticism and foolishness."

If Mr. Morehead's record on the initiative and referendum in the last session was good his party managers should not find it necessary to misstate it. This statement implies that the amendments Mr. Morehead desired were incorporated in the bill as finally adopted, and that they were more modest safeguards of direct legislation. The record is so easily accessible that one wonders the "democratic news bureau" should risk such a statement.

The initiative and referendum bill, introduced by Senator Skiles, now democratic candidate for congress in the Fourth district, was debated in the senate in committee of the whole on February 7, 1911. Senator Skiles himself suggested one or two minor changes in the bill, among them the provision that the affirmative vote on a measure must equal 35 percent of the total vote in addition to receiving a majority of those voting on the measure. After this began the effort to attach hostile amendments, as Senator Skiles declared them to be.

These amendments took two directions. First there was the effort to increase the number of petitioners required to submit a measure. The bill provided for 10 per cent. Senator Place proposed to make this fifteen. Mr. Morehead voted for this amendment, which was defeated with the help of Senator Skiles, a handful of progressive democrats and all but one or two republicans. When the bill came to the house the democratic element corresponding to the Morehead group in the senate managed to increase the percentage to fifteen as applied to constitutional amendments only. The change voted for by Mr. Morehead would have made the fifteen per cent apply to all measures, statutory as well as constitutional, and was not finally enacted into law.

The second point of attack in the senate was the majority to be required to adopt measures submitted under the initiative and referendum. The existing constitution provides for a majority of all the votes cast in adopting amendments. It had never been possible to carry an amendment under the provision except by the subterfuge of counting party tickets for it. The "majority of all votes cast" provision in
